SCOTT MCBURNEY - GULL ROCK GAZETTE'S FIRST EDITOR (1994-1997)

In May of this year, I received an email from Paul Chamberlain. He indicated that 2013 was the 20th anniversary of the Gull Rock Gazette. To celebrate this event, Paul was hoping that each of the previous editors would be willing to write an article sharing some experiences from their tenure. As founding editor of the Gazette, this email struck me for a couple of reasons. First, I found it incredible that 20 years had passed since I first proposed the idea to John Latimer about creating a newsletter to keep Kilcoo alumni in touch with each other and up to date on the “goings-on” at Kilcoo and AMICI. Second, it made me reflect on how remarkable it is that the Gazette has been in continuous print for 20 years and has improved with each issue. I readily accepted Paul’s invitation but I knew it would be a challenge to put down all of my thoughts in the allocated 400 words – here goes (I went a little over the limit!).

When I first discussed the idea of the Gazette with the Chief, he was instantly excited and onboard. Within seconds, he started generating a raft of ideas for content and approach – it was as though he had been thinking about this exact concept for years (I am sure he had been). He offered his total support for rounding up content contributors because he knew that this would be one of the biggest challenges that I would face (he was right). The other thing I remember vividly is that he really wanted to include a section in each edition called “Kilcoo Trivia”. During my tenure, he eagerly provided all of that content. I always looked forward to receiving the Kilcoo Trivia questions from the Chief – many of the questions that I did not know the answers to would lead to fascinating conversations with him about Kilcoo history.

In preparing to write these words, I pulled out the first issue of the Gazette, which I had not looked at in many years. It brought back some great memories. The first thing I noticed was the cover article entitled “Venerable Highland Yard draws 475 Runners”. It was written by my good friend and legendary Kilcoo staff member Dave “Red” Graham who sadly passed away in October 2009. Red was the Highland Yard Race Director for several years and like everything he did, he gave it “his all”. Under his stewardship, tens of thousands of dollars were raised for AMICI. The first issue also mentioned that the Chief’s book “Maker of Men – The Kilcoo Story” would be started upon his retirement from RSGC and that he was looking for content. The issue mentioned the founding of the Kilcoo Alumni Association (KCAA) by its first president, Tim Currie, and the establishment of the KCAA Barbecue Organizing Sub-committee chaired by brother Ian Currie. It also included an update on AMICI’s activities from then President Mike “Woody” Sherwood and a report from the AMICI Campership Chairman, Mike Latimer.

While I think the first issue was a good start, the content was a little thin as I was finding my way. I think each issue got better as more people contributed content and ideas. After a few years, I decided it was time to pass the torch. It was getting harder to find the time with an expanding workload and, frankly, my creativity was drying up. The Chief was great about this. He said (paraphrasing) “Scottie, you started something special but, in anything, there comes a time for new people to take over to bring renewed energy and ideas” (I was immediately reminded of the very sad speech the Chief gave at the closing banquet in 1981 when he announced he was retiring as director).

I am really pleased to see how the Gazette has flourished over the years. The content is broader and deeper and the format and graphics have been significantly refined (I will say I am glad that the little seagull logo has been retained – that is the one thing I “gently” requested when I retired as editor). I think it is clear that, 20 years after its founding, the Gazette is doing what the Chief hoped it would do – helping to keep the very special Kilcoo spirit strong among its alumni! Rip Ram!

VENERABLE HIGHLAND YARD DRAWS 475 RUNNERS (AND ONE CBC CELEBRITY!)

“Ready, Go!” boomed the voice of Phil Sherwood at the start of the 22nd Annual Highland Yard. As the crowd echoed down the Deep Bay Road, more than 450 runners sprinted off towards Minden. Included in these runners were 143 Kilcoo campers and staff who smashed the then existing group participation record. As a result of their efforts, the entire camp received free ice cream courtesy of the Kawartha Dairy and the Bank of Montreal.

At the finish line, Bill Mecker, Jennifer Mecker, Ian Sainsbury, Jamie Wallace, Elizabeth Wallace, Mike Neweditch, Mike Macdonald, Wally Oakes, Scott Elmhirst, Barb Macintosh, Jill Graham, Mike Sherwood, Sam Baldwin, Sue Smith, Janine Surriner, and many other volunteers co-ordinated the results, the timing, and the finish area. Back on the course, Scott Russell, Tim Currie, Jeff Madonald, Bruce Ross, and Scott McBurney all set new alumni records by easily surpassing the previous time set by Wally Oakes. Hal Hammarford who was unable to attend the 1993 Highland Yard now training to set a new record this summer!

Thanks to the efforts of many volunteers, the 1993 Highland Yard was a great success. Many Kilcoo Alumni came out to run or to help celebrate! This year, the new Race Directors, Scott Elmhirst and Scott Merrick, have many ideas to help the tradition grow! We hope to see as many as possible coming out to participate or to cheer on runners! Many thanks to everyone who helped out over the past three years to make the event so much fun.

EDITOR'S MUSINGS

With this issue we are completing the 20th year of publishing the Gull Rock Gazette. What Scott McBurney inaugurated in the spring of 1994 has become a regular fixture that has helped provide a connection to Kilcoo for all of us as we have continued on with our busy lives. Included here are reports from 5 of the first 7 editors and I am thankful to all of them for keeping this wonderful newsletter alive for so long. Scott has made available a copy of that first issue that I can send to anyone with nostalgic instincts. Simply send your request to gazetteeditor@kilcoo.com

The 2013 summer at Kilcoo was extremely successful, though somewhat unique, what with a single July heat wave surrounded by cooler weeks and a tornado that Lub describes in detail in his Fireside Chat. Yet again camp was very full, so full in fact that the former staff cabin, "The Hole" had to be torn down and rebuilt as a camper cabin.

Bringing up names from the distant past I was assured by Phil Harris (1953-58) that while yes, he had moved inland to Palm Desert, California, he was in no danger of the raging California wildfires. Dan Yarmey (1949-57) reported in from Guelph that some teachers or athletic trainers among our alumni might be interested in his newly published e-book, Enhancing Performance: Mental Training for Coaches, Athletes and Parents. To check it out, try googling Barnes & Noble and select "Nook Books". The book's "call" number is 2940044475069.

As will be obvious in "The Spark" Amici had another banner summer and it was my honour to be able to participate again in this year's Canoe Heads event. Later in June Bob Dameron and a few alumni friends (pictured to the right) gathered together for a day of golf and in doing so, raised $500 for Amici. Then this fall the usual suspects got together for a drink, a bite to eat, and a chance to chat in Toronto and were joined this time by Don Story (1959-67) who flew in from Saskatoon. While the range of years at Kilcoo represented by those of us who meet runs from 1953 to the 70's, anyone is welcome. Just let us know and we will be glad to include you.

September 2014 marks the time of the next alumni reunion and we expect a full camp for the weekend of the 26th. Long overdue is our welcome to the women among our alumni and we hope that some of them will want to participate. Included in this issue is the registration form for all to reserve your spot and make sure you plan to be part of a great opportunity to reconnect with the camp and the many friends who helped make your summers memorable.

PAST EDITORS REFLECTION BY JAMIE LYNN AND SEAN MCCURLEY, EDITORS FROM 2002-2003

The Gazette was a way to get involved with Kilcoo's alumni, but mostly it was an avenue for us to continue the shenanigans we had left behind on Gull Lake as sailing instructors a few years prior (Bocknek, we're sorry). We approached each issue with the same goal - make this thing fun to read so people will actually read it. To that end, we introduced features like top ten lists, cooking with Jean Marie, and Separated in Minden (where we exposed our Kilcoo celebrity look a likes). A big shout out to Plugs for providing us with a hilarious comic strip and to all of our enthusiastic contributors - and most of all, thanks to those who allowed us to have a little fun at their expense. In the end, we think we put out some entertaining issues, ruffled some feathers, and had a lot of fun. We drove the Hugster, our desktop publisher, nuts and may have given Mouse, then president of Amici, a few grey hairs. Mouse was responsible for final review and was charged with keeping us from offending our readers (which in hind sight was a decent idea).

Thanks to Paul for giving us one more chance to entertain in this issue. Here's another Separated in Minden for old time's sake (sorry Huggy).

Separated in Minden. Who knew our very own publisher had such close ties to black belt greatness? Turns out Michael 'Huggy' Adamsom shares close genetic ties with Hollywood star Steven Seagal. We're just glad Huggy wasn't trained in the ancient ways until after our stint as editors; no doubt he would have turned us into chop suey.

FIRESIDE CHAT

From Lub and the entire Latimer Family

The date was Friday July 19th and it was very hot and muggy at camp; in fact, the weather had been like that for a few days. So during lunch, for the first time in years, I mentioned to all the kids that if the “worst case weather scenario” happened, we would all go under the lodge to wait out the storm together. Well, just after 3:00pm this “worst case scenario” actually happened! I was on the Camp Rock stage in Apache Park with some LITs and I quickly made my way over to the tower while watching an ever darkening sky. We already had the small triangle flag up and by the time I reached the tower the waterfront had already been closed by Phil Williams (Trailblazer section director), all the boats were off the water, and the campers were hustling to shelter... And, then... BOOM... the weather really went off! The run from the tower was wild: kids yelling and running towards the lodge, trees and branches falling everywhere around us and even canoes being swept off the beach, flying through the air and ending up beside the Camp Awakening cabin up the hill!

When I made it to the Rec Room under the Lodge, almost everyone in camp was there too; there was some nervous laughter, some nervous tears and lots of yelling. We got everyone settled down and accounted for everyone within a few minutes and we were singing songs as the wind and rain absolutely howled around us. With our arms around each other we sang When you Walk Through a Storm, and to me, it was a very powerful moment, one of the most unique I have experienced at Kilcoo. After the songs, the weather outside had calmed down, so we emerged to view the destruction, and wow, it was something... Dozens of trees had fallen, the docks had snapped off and were all floating in the bay, and two canoes had snapped off of their lashes and suffered serious damage. Branches, leaves and shrubs were everywhere, camp was a mess! The clean-up began immediately... axes, chainsaws, shovels, and the power of the people from the smallest Trailblazers to the biggest Voyageur and all the Staff and LITs in between! They all had the same words to say: “How can I help?”

It was a crazy 5 days without power, but thanks to our generator the Lodge and the water systems all had power! It truly showed me the strength of character that we have at Kilcoo: We were “all for one and one for all”; we held our “heads up high” at the end of the storm, and we all enjoyed the “Golden Sky”. All these words we sing in the lodge and in the evening at flag lowering they became so clear, and we realized the importance of the bond we have at Kilcoo! Every camper who was there that day has their own story, and I know they are all legendary... and will grow! It was a certainly a legendary day for me; one of the highlights not only of this summer, but in all of my 29 years as director. The moment captured the concept of “Maker of Men” and it will stay with me forever.

It was a wonderful summer for so many other reasons as well and the population at Kilcoo was the biggest ever! I know you, the Alumni, will appreciate “The Tornado Story”, as you have your own tales of adventure from camp. These stories remind us of our special place on Gull Lake and I hope you will be able to share them with each other at the reunion next September. The reunion is truly a special weekend to celebrate what a special place and community we are all a part of. I am happy to wish, along with Beth, my kids, Mrs. Chief, Tingles and Kim, everyone the very best. As always, Paul has done an awesome job with the Gazette; enjoy!

DAVID “LUB” LATIMER

“MAKER OF MEN” THEN AND NOW

In 1899 Finnish composer Jean Sibelius wrote the symphonic poem “Finlandia” to serve as both a tribute to his homeland’s history and a subtle protest against the oppressive censorship imposed by neighbouring Russia. The last third of the poem was a hymn which, with the lyrics composed by Kilcoo’s Ed Devitt in 1933, is known to us all as our camp hymn “Maker of Men”. The original score became one of Finland’s most important national songs, in 1963 the melody was adopted for a time by Rice University in Houston, Texas as their school song, and four years later was used as a national anthem by the Nigerian breakaway nation of Biafra.

Recently, the original score titled “Be Still My Soul” was recorded by an English boys’ choir and I suggest that for any nostalgic Kilcoo alumnus, listening to this version of the song with eyes closed will take you back to the shores of Gull Lake and kindle memories and emotions. The choir, called Libera is made up entirely of boys from South London aged 7 to 16.

PAST EDITOR REFLECTION BY TED MORGAN, EDITOR FROM 2000-2002

Are you like me? Does a feeling of excitement and anticipation come over you twice a year when that Kilcoo-crested letter-sized envelope arrives in the mail? For me it's always brought a renewed sense of connection to camp as I flip through the iconic green and white pages. So when the opportunity arose to take over the reigns as editor and be responsible for delivering that "piece of Kilcoo" twice a year I did not hesitate to say yes.

This was back in the early 2000's and as a bonus in those days the role of Gazette editor came with being made a member of the AMICI board. Attending meetings at Chief and Mrs. Chief's house on York Valley Crescent, followed by "High House" on Avenue Rd., was certainly one of the perks. Having spent 11 summers at Kilcoo (5 on staff) being able to maintain the continuity of camp in my life by collecting stories and photographs from alumni and AMICI supporters was a jubilant activity.

If memory serves me my "term" as editor lasted 2 years, coming to an end when I decided to move to BC (the option of opening a Western bureau Gazette office at the time just didn't make sense). Two memories stand out as notable "legacy" achievements during that time. Both came as a result of my recruitment of Ben Baldwin as unofficial Gazette creative director (his work on cabin signs as a staff member was legendary so I knew he could make an impact).

The two of us had been tasked by the board to come up with a new tagline for AMICI. After working through several options and iterations I believe we arrived at a shortlist of three, one of which was "Share the Gift of Summer Camp!". I still get a kick out of seeing that line atop the Gazette's front page in every issue (note to editor: don't change tagline). The other memory and addition made during that time was small but I think remains impactful. The placement of the gull next to the author's name of each article. That was Ben's idea. Simple, friendly, classic.

The real backbone of the Gazette though in those days was Mike "Huggy" Adamson. I collected the stories and tried to figure out some sort of thread with each issue, but Huggy put it all together. I'm confident that if it wasn't for Pinetop Designs, the Gazette would not have continued to remain the mainstay publication it has been for so many years. Of course Lub and Chief also deserve credit for their ideas and guidance with each issue. Plus I just like extending them thanks for any Kilcoo-related goodness that's happened in my life. Certainly getting the chance to grow even closer to Chief as a member of the AMICI board during those years was one of the finest side benefits. Thanks for those days comrades. And stories!

PAST EDITORS REFLECTION BY BEN BALDWIN, EDITOR FROM 1997-2000

My brother Sam and I started at Kilcoo in 1985, during Lub's first year as director. We chose Kilcoo because there were boxes of Cap'n Crunch on the breakfast tables in the future Director's slideshow. I'm not joking.

Over the years, I became an LIT, then a counsellor, then I led trips – the last of which was to the Chilkoote Pass and Big Salmon River. In all this time, we never had Cap'n Crunch for breakfast. All of these experiences remain unforgettable and have made an impact on my life, but the most important aspects of Kilcoo for me are the friends, memories, and life lessons that I took away.

When I left camp, The Chief asked me to become involved with Amici, so I took him up on it. We had some people in charge of campership, some who were in charge of rye and gingers, and then there was a guy who couldn't write real good who said he'd take over the Gull Rock Gazette. That was me.

As editor of the Gull Rock Gazette, I was following a tough act: its founder, Scott McBurney. Scott was putting a lot of work into the Gazette, because these were still the days of Gutenberg, i.e. before desktop publishing. We'd struggle through formatting the paper, cutting things to make them fit, etc. I remember lots of paper scraps and physical photos. I can't recall the whole process -- either because it was so long ago, or I've blocked it out because it was so painful.

So, either because I'm a computer nerd or because I'm lazy, I decided we'd take advantage of desktop publishing to produce the Gazette. I called alumnus Mike Adamson, of Pinetop Designs, to design the layout and help me produce the paper. Mike was actually so good that my job changed from producing a paper to nagging people for content. It must have taken me half the time to produce a Gazette than McB. So, I added another section, for more content, as a guilt avoidance tactic. But I decided to fill it mostly with photos because that took up the most space. I also had a slight hunch that Kilcoo people love pictures.

I ran the Gazette for a few years, seeing hundreds of pictures, but never came across that Cap'n Crunch picture again. I think Lub took that picture at Mazinaw and just told us it was Kilcoo.

THE SPARK

BETWEEN EVERY TWO PINES IS A DOORWAY TO A NEW WORLD

Summer camp offers children a new perspective on their world, opening up new challenges, friendships and opportunities for joyful discovery. Your support of Amici campers has opened many doors for children and youth this summer. In 2013, you provided experiences for deserving children and youth at 30 camps across Ontario and none of it would have been possible without your vital involvement – Thank You!

Each donor, volunteer and supporter made this summer such a great success. We have received countless photographs, letters and well wishes from our campers and guardians –

Courtesy Kilcoo Camp

A testament to the importance of your support and the huge impact of camp on the lives of these children and their families.

A 'thank you' as well to Amici's volunteer Board of Directors. Amici's program growth this past year can be attributed to their unwavering dedication and leadership. Many members of the Board have been part of Amici for years and we value their commitment to sending as many campers as possible to camp each year, and to ensuring that each child has an opportunity to continue to attend camp for as many summers as they wish.

Amici has successfully completed the first year of our strategic plan "250 by 50", developed in partnership with Endeavour Volunteer Consulting in 2012. The plan was created in response to a study by Endeavour which showed increasing demand for Amici's program, and close to 3000 underserved potential campers in Toronto's priority neighbourhoods. With your help, we are on the path to reducing our current camper waiting list, and expanding our program to serve even more children at camp in the future.

For more information on any aspect of Amici, please contact our office team. Tory and Kate can be reached at 416-588-8026 or by email at info@amicicharity.org.

INTRODUCING AMICI'S AMBASSADORS' COUNCIL

Members of The Ambassadors' Council believe that every child should experience summer camp, regardless of financial barriers. They appreciate the multi-year commitment that Amici makes to each child in the program; and have each made a significant commitment to sharing the gift of summer camp with deserving children. Ambassadors are community-minded leaders who help Amici increase our impact to serve more children and families each year.

It's first year in 2013, the council was launched with four founding members:

Craig Smith (Chair)

Craig Smith is a Toronto entrepreneur whose principal business is Ashlar Urban Realty (a Canadian commercial real estate brokerage) where he is the founder and president. Craig and Cathy Smith's holding company Smycorp Investments Inc. owns many urban assets and is principal in several successful investment funds focused on refurbishing specific real estate assets. Smycorp works with and supports many charities like Amici.

"Camp is a place where one can fully develop who you are, rather than who you think you should be. Camp is the experience of enjoying the outdoors while sharing that experience and learning leadership skills with peers in a fun, social and supportive setting. Camp was a period in my life where I befriended young men and staff, whose council and advice is as relevant to me today as it was when I was young. This same experience has been passed on to my children and camp is also one of the most important components of their lives. My wife Cathy and I have always supported Amici and its efforts to provide those with a camp experience who couldn't otherwise budget for it. We believe that there isn't nearly enough understanding of the role that camp plays in the development of youth." - Craig Smith

Greg Guatto

Greg is President, COO and co-owner of Aspen Properties Ltd., a fully integrated, privately held real estate company based in the city of Calgary. Greg is proud to be involved as a coach with Springbank Minor Hockey, involved with his community association, as well as a Calgary Alumni Leadership Advisory Group Member for the Ivey Business School.

YOUR SUPPORT IN ACTION

Thanks to your support this past year, Amici sent 171 children and youth to summer camp for a total of over 400 weeks of summer camp! Some campership program facts to note:

- Amici campers attended 30 accredited overnight camps in Ontario and we plan on increasing our partner camp group to 35 in 2014.
- 14% of Amici campers participated in Leadership Training and/or advanced wilderness tripping programs this summer. Many of these campers will go on to become staff members at partner camps in future summers.
- This year, 73% of Amici campers were returning campers at their respective partner camps.
- Amici supported 53 first-time campers in 2013.
- Amici staff members visited seventeen partner camps over the course of the summer. Camp visits are always one of the highlights of the summer, as our staff is able to see first-hand campers enjoying themselves, as well as experience the uniqueness of each camp.

Thank you all our partner camps, donors and volunteers for making all this possible!

AMICI'S YOUNG PROFESSIONALS COUNCIL

Amici's Young Professionals Council continues to work hard organizing events and raising awareness for Amici. This is a new endeavour, led by a dedicated and eager young group of people that are passionate about camp and believe in the benefits of camp for children and youth. Their commitment to sending children and youth to camp is apparent in their organizing of several events this year, the largest set to happen in the Spring 2014! To get involved, please contact Tory at tory@amicicharity.org or 416 588 8026.

"I believe that the camp experience is like no other in a young person's personal development. It not only builds interpersonal and leadership skills, but the impact of being in a camp atmosphere with a peer group and surrounded by positive role models, can have a lifelong influence. Camp has played a very significant role in my life and I continue to support Amici because I see it doing the same for many young people." - Greg Guatto

Suzanne Ivey-Cook

Suzanne has been on the Greenwood College School Board of Directors since it's opening in the fall of 2003. Suzanne also serves as Vice-Chair of the Ivey Foundation, a private family foundation granting approximately $2.2 million yearly to primarily environmental projects. Suzanne has also served on the Campaign Cabinet of the United Way and on the Boards of the Bishop Strachan School and Mount Sinai Hospital Foundation.

"Camp was a big part of my life growing up. My siblings and I all went to camp in Algonquin Park for many summers and it was my first real introduction to the wilderness of Canada. As an adult my love of the outdoors remains a very important part of my life. As a family, my siblings and I have made conservation in Canada a major focus for giving through the Ivey Foundation. My three children have also attended camp for many years. It gave them all a chance to be independent, make lifelong friends and learn invaluable leadership skills through challenging life experiences. I am proud to support Amici to insure that other children can experience the many benefits time at summer camp has to offer." Suzanne Ivey-Cook

Alex Moorhead

Alex Moorhead is Managing Partner at Tandem Expansion, a growth equity capital firm focused on making investments in Canadian technology companies. Previously Alex co-founded and served as Chief Executive Officer of Loyalty Management Group, a London, England based business which owns and operates Nectar, the UK's leading consumer loyalty program. Alex has also worked in corporate finance at Banc of America Securities (San Francisco) and UBS (New York) where he executed a wide variety of transactions.

"Camp is a place where kids can build confidence, make life-long friendships and expand their horizons by connecting with a wide variety of people who will have lasting impressions on their lives. The power of camp is true for all kids and youth regardless of who they are or their individual circumstances. Amici seeks to provide this very positive experience for as many deserving kids as possible in our community and I am very proud to support these efforts." Alex Moorhead

CANOE HEADS FOR KIDS – PADDLING AND PORTAGING FOR A CAUSE

On Saturday June 1st, close to 100 participants on 12 teams came together to paddle and portage through downtown Toronto. The driving force behind this adventure-working together to send deserving children and youth to summer camp.

Canoe Heads 2013 proved to be the most successful event yet, raising $97,000, which will share the gift of almost 200 weeks of camp with children from low-income families. Our presenting sponsors, TD Bank, Manulife Financial and The Alva Foundation, were extremely generous and we thank them for their involvement in such an important day. We also acknowledge Tim McMartin, who raised the most out of all participants and Team Algonquin and Team Dumoine for raising over $10,000 each. Great work!

This year we were lucky to have yet another fabulous group of volunteers. The event could not have run as smoothly as it did without your help, guidance and leadership. A HUGE thank you to Alexandra Campbell, Steph Hodson, Carly McDougald, Kerry Reynolds, Emily Canoe Heads 2014 participants taking a much needed break.

Alonzo, Melissa Ray, George Hendrie, Miles Villneff as well as all our day-of volunteers!

Canoe Heads for Kids was lucky enough to receive media coverage after the event, with CityNews covering the story as well as 680 News and SNAP Newspaper. Please visit the media section of our website for more details.

We have already had a great deal of interest in Canoe Heads for Kids 2014 from our volunteers and participants. If this year's event is any indication, Canoe Heads 2014 will most definitely be a day to remember. Please mark Saturday June 7th, 2014 in your calendars!

THANKS TO OUR CANOE HEADS TEAM CAPTAINS

COMMUNITY EVENTS

Community events are a vital part of Amici's fundraising. From birthdays, to weddings; there is always an occasion to raise awareness and help send kids to camp! Thank you to all our supporters for the time and effort put into running these events.

- Thank you to everyone who has supported Amici through our partnership with EchoAge this year. EchoAge inspires compassion and generosity in children, by creating a personal website that collects donations. The funds are then split between purchasing a gift for the child and going to a charity of choice. We are looking forward to celebrating many birthdays to come!

All families who took part in Kilcoo Family Party Time at Kilcoo Camp, August 2013

- Both the Kilcoo Family Party Time and Kilcoo Camp Visitor's Day were extremely successful in raising funds this past summer! In total, almost $2,000 was raised from the events. A BIG thank you to everyone involved. Thanks to you, two children will get to experience the magic of camp!

VOLUNTEER PROFILE: ALLYSON FORSHAW

Since early May 2013, Allyson Forshaw has generously donated her time and efforts as Amici's Volunteer Outreach Coordinator. Allyson has been able to increase alumni outreach, by connecting with past Amici campers and families. The work done by Allyson will ensure that success stories, thanks to our donors and volunteers support, will be able to be shared for years to come. Thank you Allyson for your dedication to Amici!

Riding the waves at Glen Bernard Camp

Since going to camp, I feel I am beginning to develop the tools necessary to help me achieve my dreams. I look forward to continuing on this path and becoming a leader in my camping life and in my life beyond camp. Thank you for this opportunity!"

Justin, Amici Camper (Camp Wenonah)

- Thanks to the Alternative Investment Management Association, who selected Amici as a beneficiary of its annual golf tournament. Participants enjoyed a great day of golf at Angus Glen Golf Club, and through their support contributed $10,000 towards Amici. Thanks to AIMA and the golfers for making a difference!

- Former Amici Board Chair, Mike Jack celebrated a special birthday this year and asked for donations in his honour be directed towards Amici. Thank you to everyone who donated. Thanks Mike for your ongoing support!

- Dave and Andrea Armstrong also celebrated birthdays and asked for all gifts to be made to Amici. Hope you both had a great day!

A NEW CHAPTER BEGINS FOR AMICI'S BOARD OF DIRECTORS

After over fourteen years of dedicated service to Amici, most recently as Board Chair, we wish a fond farewell to Brent Knightley and warmly welcome Paul Steven as incoming Chair of the Board.

An alumni of Kilcoo Camp, Brent has played a vital role in the development of Amici and has worked tirelessly in many capacities over the course of his involvement on the Board. Starting as a member of the campership committee in 1999, Brent has contributed significantly to the growth of Amici's program and community outreach activities over the years. This culminated in the development of the current strategic plan last year, which will define Amici's path through to 2016. In the short term, Brent now takes on a new role in a non-voting capacity as Past Chair. Thank you Brent!

Paul Steven is Vice President, TD Bank Group, and first joined the Amici Board of Directors in 2010 as Treasurer. He brings with him an additional 10 years of prior Board experience at local charities. Paul is committed to providing children and youth with the memorable experiences that only camp can provide. His daughters currently attend Camp Kandalore, one of Amici's partner camps. We are excited to welcome Paul to this new role!

This year we also welcome three new members to the Board:

Duncan Robertson, Director

Duncan has been the Director of Onondaga Camp for 13 years. He has been actively involved with the Ontario Camps Association, serving as a Board Member for five years. He is currently the Past-President of the Society of Camp Directors and has spoken on many topics over the years at provincial, national and international camping conferences. Onondaga has been an Amici partner camp and valued supporter for over 35 years.

Carrie Russell, Director

Carrie Russell is Executive Vice-President and Chief Marketing Officer with Davis +Henderson and has over 25 years experience in the financial services industry. She has accountability for stewarding the D+H brand for North America. Carrie was an avid camper for 12 years at Camp Gay Venture and her sons attend Camp Hurontario every August, which they love dearly.

Jamie Vallance, Treasurer

Jamie is an experienced finance professional, receiving his MBA from Columbia Business School, his B.Com from Queen's University, and is a CFA Charterholder. He previously served on Amici's Board of Directors as Treasurer from 2007 to 2011, and was a camper and staff member at Kilcoo Camp for 11 years. We are excited to welcome Jamie back to Amici!

Welcome to our new Board Members!

"The experience my granddaughter receives at camp will last her a lifetime and the skills developed will carry her through adulthood. It all happened because of the generosity of Amici and their supporters!"

Stephanie B., Grandmother of Amici Camper (Camp Oconto)

A SPECIAL THANK YOU TO DAVE WILDER AND SYNERGY NETWORKX

David Wilder is one of Amici's longest standing and most dedicated supporters, both personally, and through his company, Synergy Networkx. Dave's passion for giving back started when he was a camper and staff member at Kilcoo Camp from 1985-1990. Since then and for over 20 years, Dave has provided vital infrastructure support and technical IT services to Amici through his company's generous in-kind donation of services. The commitment of Dave and his team has had significant impact, enabling increasing numbers of deserving kids to attend Amici partner camps each summer.

Over the years, Dave and his always-friendly team at Synergy have done everything from acting as Amici's mailing address and providing administration services in the 1990s; to developing, maintaining and hosting Amici's website from its inception to the present day. When Amici acquired dedicated office space in 2008, Synergy Networkx generously donated telephone and networking technical expertise. On an almost daily basis, Dave and his team are a knowledgeable resource for any kind of technical and IT related question; the intangible value of this kind of 24-7 expertise will be familiar to anyone faced with managing a small business IT network on a limited budget.

Today, Dave's team continues to provide vital, reliable 'behind the scenes' support to all aspects of Amici. Because of Dave's incredible commitment, a greater portion of each donated dollar can be directed towards immediate camp fees and program costs, allowing more kids to attend camp through Amici each summer.

Dave's generous support has truly transformed the lives of many Amici campers, parents and families over the years. We are grateful for all you have done for Amici. THANK YOU!

Synergy Networkx is dedicated to developing, supporting, and maintaining premier financial services brands and investor communications through the creation and management of advanced information technology, content, and design solutions. For more information, please visit: www.synergynetworkx.com.

CONFIRMING MEMORIES AND KINDLING THE KILCOO FIRES

In July 2013, I plotted a stopover at Kilcoo en route to cottage country. Of course, when you have a 2 year old boy and 5 year old girl, the drive to camp from Ottawa can get a bit hairy. Solution? Grab chocolate milkshakes at Kawartha Dairy for "breakfast", teach everyone the words to "Oh! Vreneli, my pretty one!" and promise everyone that the lunchtime party at Kilcoo's Lodge will be insanely awesome. Build unreasonable expectations of a summer camp wonderland, fuel the children with glucose, mollify your spouse with bromides about "feeling like a kid again", and you've got a recipe for overhyped Kilcoo magic!

My confidence was not misplaced. We arrived in a manner reminiscent of so many staff days off: 9 minutes after the 10-minute bell had rung, racing up the hill past Lub's cabin (with kids in each arm) so fast that I nearly failed to notice the upsized, box-shaped Mansion on my left. But when the lodge's screen doors slammed behind me, the utter awesomeness of the scene was on plain display. Lub gave us all big hugs, introduced us to the Trapper overflow table where I'd later meet the sons of two staff members I looked up to in the 1980s (Chuck Fisher, Mike Bellamy), and made sure that my wife and kids felt like the most special people in the world. Time stopped. We sang our grace to higher powers. And the universe was reduced to an elevated eating platform above the diamonds shimmering on Gull Lake. I was returned to my natural camp habitat, for the first time en famille.

Suffice to say that the Amos family visit to camp was as special as I could have ever imagined. I wish my father Bruce and uncles Bob and Paul could have seen the look on my son Enrique Mateo's face when he heard 300 "big guys" belt out his own bed-time songs - "Zoomba Za" and "Walk Through the Storm" - at top volume. Neither he nor Paloma Grace, my daughter, could read nor had any clue what to make of the weighty cotton lyric sheets that hung at the front; but since they knew all the words already, it mattered not. The hook was set; the insanity of the Kilcoo lunchtime singsong would not be forgotten.

As we approach 2020, when the third Amos generation joins the ranks of Kilcoo boys, I truly hope Lub is at the helm. His is now a household name at our place in Chelsea (15km upstream of the confluence of the Gatineau and Ottawa rivers). His ability to connect, get personal, ask questions, and then pivot at high-speed to take care of other business before returning to pay further attention, was nothing short of phenomenal. It boggles my mind to think of how many Kilcoo boys have been blessed by this level of detailed engagement. And great leadership trickles down to manifest its early signs among the younger generation, with forthright introductions from so many campers, LITs and staff, their eye contact steady above the firm handshake. It gives me confidence that Kilcoo is still the kind of place where parents can entrust their most precious children, knowing that the process and values of man-making have changed little over time.

I'm not so sentimental or intoxicated by the fumes of my youth to think that nothing at Kilcoo has changed. Cabins are rebuilt, landscaping preferences change and staff turnovers yield new generations of leaders. I was dismayed to find the tetherball court had gone extinct. But there's no denying how amazing it feels to know that camp is still being run with the most ebullient energy, by competent staff who train up through the internal ranks, and with the same integrity and spirit. How! How! Looking forward to the next reunion in September 2014.

A LOOK BACK AT A SCARY DAY IN KILCOO'S PAST AUGUST 25TH, 1972

Below is the text of a note dropped from a helicopter by Ron Bowes of Bradley Air Services of Carp, Ontario upon locating members of a missing Kilcoo canoe trip.

"If you follow the shore of the river for approx. another 2 miles from where you were this morning when I flew over you, you will come to a fork in the river or a small lake which will make it impossible for you to continue. At this point there will be a canoe and a truck waiting for you.

If you can read this message ok could you stand side by side and hold hands and wave your loose hands. Thank you and good luck.

THE RIDLEY COLLEGE PRANK!

Even though this prank takes place in the summer of 1980, in actual fact the story's background begins in the summer of 1972.

In the summer of 1972, I should already have graduated from grade 6 and been getting ready for grade 7. In reality my public school was deciding that I needed to be held back yet again. They were going to move me to the "sunshine class". Today, the Ontario educational system calls this group of individuals "the developmentally challenged". Okay, so I can hear all those people who knew me back in the day silently snickering and thinking....."Wardlaw! Mentally challenged? No Kidding!" I can hear Dave Minnes in particular. I will never forget when we drove his brand new Pacer to Redstone in the summer of '77. He casually stated to me that he thought that I was a really bright kid. He would say this with a smile on his face and somehow it was OK. Why? Well.....because it was Minnes. Also, I was in his Pacer on the way to Redstone. If you remember the road to the Redstone cabin, it was all gravel. Need I say more....

Well, back to the background of the prank! As the school system deliberated over what they should do with me in 1972, Chief had taken a special interest in me. He knew that the only place where I was happy was at camp. This was my first year as a two month camper. Chief got wind from my parents on what the school system was going to do to me during Parent's Day in July. The next day Chief approached my parents and asked if it would be okay if he made some inquiries on my behalf into some private schools. Years later he would confide in me that he was disgusted and horrified by how the public system had given up on me. Chief was good friends with the headmaster of Lakefield College and thought that Lakefield would be a great fit for me. Unfortunately the school was full. However, the headmaster of Lakefield was the son of the Headmaster of Ridley College in St. Catharine's. In order to be accepted at Ridley you had to pass an entrance exam. Somehow, Chief got the test waived. As a result, in the fall of 1972 I was off to Ridley College. I was a kid who could barely read and write, and I was being accelerated into grade 6. I do not know how Chief did it, but in the summer of '72 he forever changed the direction of my life.

By the summer of 1981 I had started to accumulate a mass of orange and black clothing (Ridley's colours) with Ridley's logo on them. I really did not intend to advertise or show pride in my school but everybody at camp started to associate me with Ridley. For some reason Bob Strauss took offence to this. At every opportunity he would put the school down. As he did this, I would turn around and verbally defend the school. The unintended result was that people began to associate me as the Ridley guy who had incredible school spirit. The reality was that I was the Kilcoo guy with incredible camp spirit. But that is not how I was perceived. In my soul, I knew Bob was joking. However, he took it so far that people were actually beginning to feel sorry for me. Staff started to ask me "How are you going to get back at him?" but at the time I had no idea and I really didn't care. I was at camp and I was really enjoying camp life. However, to be honest I had not realized how his unmerciful teasing was actually starting to hurt my camp creds. It was time for payback!

One beautiful morning people started heading towards flag raising. This particular morning there seemed to be a bit of a buzz in the air. I was coming along the path from the Voyageur section when somebody went running past me going in the opposite direction. They saw me, veered towards me and yelled "Perfect, Wardlaw". I just smiled and waved. As I made my way up the hill towards the Arts and Crafts building someone else yelled "Way to go Wardlaw". Again I smiled and waved. A large crowd had assembled in front of the tennis courts beside the staff lounge (now the Camp Awakening building). They were standing around Bob Strauss's pride and joy, his rust bucket of a car. However, on this morning it was very different. This morning it was painted entirely in the Ridley colours of orange and black. This included all the windows, bumpers and wheels. People started coming up to me congratulating me on the perfect revenge prank.

Then there was a bit of a hush. Looking down towards the flag poles, Bob was coming around the lodge and making his way up towards the tennis courts. He got to his car, smiled, looked at me and simply said "Nice". From that moment on Bob basically stopped teasing me about Ridley. He actually put his arm around me and laughed.

Chief always told us that the best pranks are the ones where nobody ever knows who actually did them. For years there have been people who believe that I did this. The truth is, I didn't. I will never forget Scott Russell coming up to me and congratulating me. I looked at him and stated with all honesty that it wasn't me. He just looked at me and said in a very sarcastic way "Yah (pause) right". Then he did something I was not expecting. He smiled and quietly said "Just take credit for a job well done". Nobody knows who really did it. Everybody thought it was me, but nobody knows the truth. A double whammy. I am 100% sure I know who did this. However, they are two individuals who will go nameless. Why? Because they pulled off the classic Kilcoo prank. However, I do want to thank them for getting Bob Strauss off my back that summer and for improving my camp creds. I believe this was their true intention. Thanks for that particular day comrades.

REMINISCENCES - CAMARADERIE, MUSIC, CANOEING, AND HYPNOSIS

I first came to Kilcoo as a senior camper the summer of 1954. I arrived from Washington, DC, and was met at the Toronto train station by an extremely amiable gentleman named John Latimer, who drove me to where everyone was assembling to board buses for the drive to camp. Of course, I did not know anyone and was left to my own thoughts as others boisterously renewed old acquaintances.

By the time we arrived, some significant weather had moved in and it had become gloomy, blustery, and penetratingly wet. I did not see many buildings, and when I finally found where I was to call home for the next eight weeks I was dismayed to discover a very damp tent in the midst of a very soggy temperate rain forest.

But, oh, when I woke the next morning to brilliant sunshine, a luscious verdant forest, and beautiful blue water, all was suddenly very right with the world! And it remained so for that summer, the next when I was a CIT, and the next when I was a counselor.

So many memories flood back now as I write. The warm camaraderie, the wonderful range of activities, and the scrumptious food. One of the fondest is recalling the musicales. We all sang lustily as John leapt and bounded vigorously and without abandon throughout every corner of the lodge as he led us in song. "Val-deri, Val-dera, Val-deri, Val-dera-ha-ha-ha-ha, Val-deri, Val-dera. My knapsack on my back" or "An' the dawn comes up like thunder outer China 'crost the Bay!" - belted out with gusto) And then there was the drummer in the band; his solos were the best I had ever heard, and I was sure he would become famous someday (though I now have no idea whether he even took up music as a career).

It seems like only yesterday that I learned the deep meaning of the camp mottos - "Hang on for three days and three nights!" and "Once a Kilcoo camper, always a Kilcoo camper!" The canoeing skills I learned have stayed with me: a fluid J-stroke, being able to get most of the water out after dumping (always on purpose), standing high on the very stern while vigorously pumping the vessel forward (a skill perhaps not officially recommended by the staff).

It was also at Kilcoo that I learned the "correct" pronunciation of buoy - "boy" not "booeey" - and this Yank still uses that pronunciation much of the time. I also learned "O Canada," which I have occasion to sing even today since I now live just south of the border.

My final year at Kilcoo I was counselor for one end of the Longhouse, a structure that held two "cabins;" we counselors slept in a small room between the two units. My campers were Larry Whiting, David Lampkin, David Howard, John Jepson, Peter Handley, Mike Atkins, David Reynolds, Duncan Walker, Brian Forsythe, Peter Standing, Ian MacMartin, and Jack Johnson. (No, my memory is not quite that good; I took a look at a photo album I have kept.)

That summer ('56) one of the other counselors had a fascination with hypnosis, so many of us were trying it - with mixed results. I never went "under" because I was always trying to analyze what was being done.

However, one time, as several others crowded into our tiny enclave, I used what I had observed in an effort to hypnotize the counselor who shared the quarters with me - with his permission. I swung the pendant slowly before him as I soothingly told him to concentrate and then go to sleep. Much to my surprise he did. But how to prove that he was really hypnotized? On a stand between our beds was a small bowl containing a goldfish. I told him that when I woke him up he was to talk about the fish, and that every time he would say "fish" his thumb was to twitch. I also told him that he could stop doing this when I told him to stop. Then I told him I would count backwards from three and then tell him to wake up.

Well, he obeyed me perfectly. He woke up and began to talk about the fish. And sure enough, every time he said "fish," which was quite frequently, his thumb would not just twitch - it would convulse. (I have tried to do this to my own thumb and haven't come even close to the extreme spasm he underwent.) While those watching laughed uproariously, he continued to talk about the fish and his thumb continued to convulse. I saw that he was quickly becoming frightened, so I told him to pay attention to me; I told him that I would count up to three and that when I reached three I would tell him that he did not have to talk about the fish any longer and that his thumb would not have to twitch. Both of us were definitely relieved when everything happened as I had instructed. Neither of us made any more attempts at hypnosis.

After that final summer at Kilcoo I went on to college in Massachusetts and a high school teaching career near San Jose, California, teaching history, English, and English as a second language. In 1993 I retired to a beautiful small island between Washington State and Vancouver Island where I do volunteer work for our community center and counsel people regarding health insurance. I have also canoed here - but have not done any hypnotizing.

LIFE AFTER KILCOO

A brief comment on what some of you have done since your summers at Kilcoo. More will be included in future issues of the Gazette. For Alumni who have not submitted anything we invite you to send us details about yourself; to others, please update us if these reports or what you sent before is out of date. Send any information to gazetteeditor@kilcoo.com.

BOB BUCHANAN (1959-62) My wife Susan, who worked her teen-age summers at the original log portage store on Canoe Lake, and I have raised three daughters who all married outdoorsy men and are nurturing six young nature-nuts. During most of our family years, we lived on Lake Chemong, north of Peterborough. We retired from teaching in 1997 to a much smaller, cottage-like home just west of Buckhorn, Ontario. I taught English at three secondary schools, serving the last twenty-five years as Department Head at Lakefield. While still in my prime, I co-ran the outdoor education program, including annual canoe trips along several of our old Algonquin circuits.

Now, Sue and I spend at least a couple of spring and fall weeks in Algonquin. Early in our retirement we would go into Kiosk camping and fishing for lake trout. Eventually, our bones' whispering became more strident and we began renting the old schoolhouse in what remains of the historic railway/lumbering village of Brent on Cedar Lake. Winters are enjoyed at a remote little house beside a tidal river in deep south Texas, where we keep a boat for fishing and enhancing our involvement in a whole new spectrum of our natural world.

JAMIE GERSON (1969-79) Little did I know how well my summers at Kilcoo prepared me for what lay ahead. From knowing how to balance the work and "play" at the UofT's Engineering program, how to guide, entertain and nurture three sons through this thing called life, to relating to a range of customers in my role as Business Development Manager with Cameron Valves. And of course the most important post camp occurrence was meeting and marrying one Marilyn Spink – a very talented lady who adds so much to my life and also puts up with the four Gerson boys!

The Gersons live in Etobicoke with a dog (Maggie) and cat (Daisy) – females at the insistence of Marilyn. Our schedule is typical of a household with 3 boys: hockey, baseball, soccer, hockey, a little homework, lots of eating/sleeping and more hockey. Marilyn and I still have our respective fathers with us who in their 80s and 90s appear at times to have more energy than us both. Sure we struggle with the "gerbil running wheel of life"; however, all in all we are healthy and happy – and that's important! Thanks again to Kilcoo for continuing to be what that song says it is ... "Maker of Men"

BILL PHIPPS (1954-63) "After graduating from Osgoode Hall Law School in 1965, I went to McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago. For three years I was in the heart of social activism around the issues of poverty, war, and race. I graduated the day Robert Kennedy was assassinated. Those three years changed my life. I returned to Toronto and was ordained in the United Church of Canada, then called to the Ontario Bar. In succession, I ran a poverty law office, adult education programs, and was minister of 2 congregations. My time at Trinity-St. Paul's United Church on Bloor St. W. allowed me to put into practice all my theology, ethics, and organizing.

In 1983 I moved to Alberta to work in United Church administration, followed by congregational ministry in Calgary. I was elected Moderator of the United Church in 1997. My theology created a public national debate that still follows me. I have represented the church in many conflict zones including Congo, Sudan, East Timor, Guatemala, the Philippines. Now retired I continue my activism around economic justice and climate change. I am delighted with my wife Carolyn, 3 children, their partners, and 4 grandchildren living in Yellowknife, Winnipeg, and Toronto. I am very grateful for my time at Kilcoo and all that the experience taught me.

NIGEL TAN (2003-10) Twenty years ago this fall, I first arrived at Kilcoo as a school group camper. I returned 10 years later as a staff member at Greenwood College. Just as in '93, the post-camp crew of '03 welcomed me in true Kilcoo spirit, with a smile, handshake, and an invitation to "party at the moon tower". The following spring, I joined Rob Chisnall as part of the OC staff. Eventually, in 2005, I became waterfront director and then one of three LIT directors a year later.

Since leaving Kilcoo my life has taken on a new focus. Today, as a new parent, husband, and teacher, the lessons I learned from Kilcoo reverberate through the education I share with the thousands of students I've encountered in the Toronto District School Board. It is because of the relationships Kilcoo helped me cultivate that I learned to put others before myself, to give more than I take, to be a Dad, a friend, a maker of men. Married to Kate Mazzucco and now the proud father of Brooklyn Tan, the only thing I wish I could change about Kilcoo would be the addition of a sister camp on Gull Lake, so my daughter could learn, grow, and share in the same valuable experiences I encountered during my time at Kilcoo. Hold thy honour high!

JIM HOWE (1953-60) 1942 Toronto war baby, Deer Park Public School, Kilcoo Camp, Oakwood Collegiate Institute, U of T, York University, Abitibi Paper Company, married, 2 daughters, marathon running and skiing, divorced, happily remarried, 2 step-sons, Buddhism, Tae Kwon Do, Algonquin Park cottage, travel, 7 grandchildren, retired, even more travel, aging issues - WHAT WAS THAT ALL ABOUT?

I don't know what it was about and I don't think that there is any intrinsic "aboutness" about it but if I were to make something up it would be about applying learning experiences to life. Many of my most important character building and learning experiences were at Kilcoo. What did I learn?

- Doing the right thing is the right thing.
- Commit = Do.
- Don't pick fights with pygmies. Don't throw stones at giants. There are better and more rewarding ways to deal with pygmies and giants.
- Straight talk begets straight relationships.
- When the going gets tough it will likely get worse before it gets better.
- When the going is great it will likely get better before it gets tough again.
- Kindness and love beget kindness and love.
- Floss.
